

FCC rules on how many newspapers and television stations a company can control in one market should not be changed. There is already too little competition and more mergers will drive independents out of business.